Molloy College Hosts Grantmanship Training Program

Molloy College Suffolk Center is hosting a Grantmanship Training Program at its Suffolk Center in East Farmingdale from June 4 through June 8, 2007. The five-day workshop will be conducted by The Grantmanship Center, the world's oldest and largest grants training organization for the nonprofit sector.

The program is designed for both novice and experienced grant seekers. The workshop covers all aspects of searching for grants, writing grant proposals, and negotiating with funding sources. Participants in this program will practice in a group setting the actual process of developing grant proposals.

"For nonprofits to survive and even thrive, it is critically important to obtain financial support from a variety of funding sources," explains Dr. Sherry Radowitz, Grants and Research Officer, Molloy College. "As it is getting increasingly more competitive to obtain grant support, organizations should avail themselves of the best techniques and resources. As a college actively involved in community service, it is within the mission of Molloy College to be a venue that promotes professional development on Long Island."

To ensure personal attention, the program is limited to 30 participants. The fee for this program is $875 which includes workshop tuition and one year of TCGI Membership benefits and services. To register for the workshop and to obtain scholarship information, contact The Grantmanship Center at (800) 421.9512, or online at www.tcgi.com.
